Foals can stand up shortly after birth. Soon they are able to run. Eventually, they will be able to run very fast. Some race horses can run as fast as 45 miles (72 kilometers) per hour while carrying a rider.

Most horses reach their full size by the time they are 5 years old. Most mares will have 5 or 6 foals during their lives, but some have as many as 19. Most horses live 20 to 30 years.
